Invensys Controls to Showcase Latest Energy Saving Products at AHR Expo 2009 in Chicago

Editor's Note: AHR Expo interviews available with Invensys Controls by contacting Sandy Frinton, (845) 454-3895 or sandy@mallen.com

Carol Stream, Ill., Dec. 22, 2008 – Invensys Controls will be on home turf as it exhibits new products and technologies that provide energy savings and environmental benefits at 2009 AHR Expo® in Chicago.

The Carol Stream, Ill.-based company will showcase a variety of products that meet today's demand for 'green' solutions, including energy-efficient programmable thermostats and indoor air quality (IAQ) products.

As part of the focus on these market trends at the show, Jan. 26-28, at McCormick Place, these products will be designated at the Invensys Controls booth (4832) with easy-to-locate signage.

"Building on the great response we received to our offerings at last year's AHR Expo in New York, we are pleased to be exhibiting at home in Chicago in 2009," said Kathy Maynard, Director of Communications, Invensys Controls. "This is an excellent opportunity for us to show contractors and wholesalers the difference our products make when it comes to energy and cost savings, efficiency, comfort and many other benefits."

With a theme of "See the Difference," featuring cartoon sea creatures, Invensys Controls will have numerous products unpackaged and accessible so visitors can try them, experience their benefits and talk to product experts.

Among the products and leading brands that Invensys Controls will feature at the booth are Robertshaw® thermostats, IAQ, igniters, controls, air sensors and valves; Ranco® temperature and defrost controllers; and Paragon® universal defrost timers.
